

DIRECTOR SYNOPSIS

Medieval fantasy meets futuristic science fiction in this effects-heavy action epic from former X-Files director Rob Bowman. In a new London, 12-year-old Quinn Abercromby witnesses the awakening of a hibernating dragon from a centuries-long slumber, the result of a construction supervised by his mother and an incident for which Quinn feels partially responsible.

Twenty years later, the adult Quinn (Bale) is the fire chief of a refortified castle community, responsible for dousing the blazes lit by the dragon's prodigious number of flame-spewing offspring, air-borne juggernauts that have wreaked havoc across the globe, torching everything and turning man kind into an endangered species.

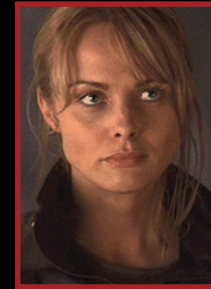

Hope arrives in the form of Denton "Dragon Slayer Extraordinaire" Van Zan, an American known to be the only man to ever kill one of the dragons, and Alex, a scientist/helo pilot who's a member of Van Zan's army, a zealous fighting force that includes a secret weapon: the Archangels, paratroopers using themselves as bait to attract and then dispatch the deadly beasts. Reign of Fire (2002) co-stars Gerard Butler and Alice Krige.
