

QUARANTINE

Angela Vidal and her cameraman Scott Percival, set out to film a report on the night shift of a Los Angeles fire station. Angela and Scott are introduced to firefighters. A medical emergency at an apartment complex is reported and the night shift is sent in. Yuri the building manager leads everyone and two police officers, James and Danny, to the apartment of Mrs. Espinoza, the source of prior screaming. Yuri knocks, waits, then unlocks the door and a dog runs out. Inside, Espinoza is hysterical. While trying to subdue the crazed elder, James gets bitten by Espinoza.

Bernard, Sadie, Angela, and Scott sneak upstairs to Bernard and Sadie's apartment, where they have a television hooked up to an antenna; without the use of cable television, they will be able to watch the news reports and learn more about what's going on. They watch a news report on television states that everyone was evacuated from the apartment complex before the police began to quarantine the building, an obvious lie. Danny rounds everyone up and informs them that Centers for Disease Control and Prevention agents are coming in to give blood tests. Lawrence corrects him by saying the only way to test for rabies is through a brain sample, While performing a role call of all the tenants to make sure everyone who is still alive is in the room, Yuri reveals that the attic is being rented by a man from Boston.

A few men downstairs fight to contain the infected, but the hungry monsters get them and attack Kathy. Scott, Angela, Jake, Yuri, Wanda, Bernard, and Sadie run into an apartment and lock the infected people out. The CDC agent sitting in an adjacent room reveals that he has been bitten, as well as Sadie. Bernard, refusing to allow any of the others to harm her in order to protect themselves, tears the plastic from the window in an attempt to obtain help. In response, he is shot by a sniper who misses the others. Yuri remembers that, in his apartment, there are keys to get to the sewers from the basement, but is then attacked by the CDC agent in the other room. Wanda is attacked by Sadie, forcing Jake, Scott, and Angela to run to Yuri's apartment to search for the keys. After they find the keys, Jake and Scott fight off several infected tenants until Yuri bites Jake. Danny barrels up the stairs roaring and chases Angela and Scott into the attic, belonging to the aforementioned absent Bostonian. they discover evidence that explains the man from Boston was part of a doomsday cult, which broke into a military biological facility to steal the Armageddon Virus. Scott investigates a noise in the attic and ducks from being attacked by an infected boy, Angela and Scott use the night vision setting on the camera to discover an emaciated man, most likely the man from Boston, He walks past them, but attacks Scott. The infected man starts eating Scott, but then hears and attacks Angela, knocking her and the camera to the floor. Angela tries to crawl back to the camera, but is dragged screaming into the darkness.
